Turner
Prize
2021

A large, white, stylized number "4" on a dark blue background. The number is composed of thick, blocky strokes, with the top horizontal bar and the vertical stem being the most prominent features.

One of the world's best-known prizes for contemporary art comes to the Herbert Art Gallery & Museum as part of Coventry UK City of Culture.

This year's prize, for the first time, is made up entirely by artist collectives and artist groups who place community collaboration and change at the heart of their practice:

Array Collective, Black Obsidian Sound System (B.O.S.S), Cooking Sections, Gentle/Radical and Project Art Works.

"The Turner Prize 2021 exhibition is a collective invitation to all of us to test the capacity of the artistic imagination to change how we think and feel about the world."
